

Security Management & Consulting Physical Security Technology Services

Pinkerton offers you reliable expertise and global resources to deliver the most efficient physical security technology strategy for your organization.

Pinkerton can provide an efficient and reliable alternative for the purchasing and operations of your entire security systems portfolio. We'll analyze your needs then customize and deliver the best security strategy for your organization.

We offer expertise in the following areas:

ID Cards & Facility Access

As an HID partner, Pinkerton can provide you genuine HID cards and credentials directly from the manufacturer. Because we also offer badging as a service, there is no need for capital investments or dedicated staff. We provide: ID cards and supplies; remote printing; special badging projects; centralized administration; and dedicated specialists.

Managed Systems

Pinkerton professionals are specially trained in the administration and use of a wide variety of security systems including physical access control and video surveillance (CCTV). Leverage our centralized staff to maintain and care for your entire security technology system.

Solutions Management

It can be inefficient and costly spending resources to manage multiple vendors, systems, contracts and locations. Because we understand your requirements and the marketplace, Pinkerton can be your one-stop source for: vendor support contracts; application support; service management; standards and procedures; and subject expertise.

Consulting

Pinkerton maintains a seasoned staff of industry experts to help guide through anything from a new strategic direction to a standard installation project. Trust our dedicated, shared, or project-specific personnel to provide: standards documentation; strategic solutions; project management; vendor and product selection; and design.

Case Study | Physical Security Technology Services: Strategic Assessment of Global Facility Access Leads to Enhanced Security and Cost Reduction

Challenge: A large, global industrial company with a decentralized approach to physical security was unable to: 1) determine who had access to which of its locations; and 2) identify which facilities used an electronic access control system.

Pinkerton Solution: Using our extensive subject matter expertise, an approach to conduct a full inventory and assessment of systems globally was prepared and deployed in just a few days. In addition, Pinkerton developed a strategy to overcome this challenge going forward.

Results: By partnering with Pinkerton, this global industrial company has: 1) developed a centralized corporate governance strategy for access control; 2) identified areas for cost savings by leveraging infrastructure; and 3) improved processes for better security and a user-friendly experience.
